PIG CLUB FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Merchants Bank to further Pork Production assisted by Local Committee

With the idea of promoting amongst the young people a spirit of independent enterprise, and also with the further object of increasing the production of one of the staple foods upon which so much depends at this time and for which the demand will more than equal the supply for probably several years to come—the number of hogs in Europe being 32,000,000 under the plan at the present time—the Merchants Bank of Canada through their local branch is forming what is to be known as the Boys and Girls Pig Club. Roughly the details of the plan upon which the Club will be operated is as follows:—

The Bank will lend sufficient money to any competent child, between the ages of 10 and 18 years, to purchase two pigs of an age about six weeks; one pig to be raised for meat purposes, and the other to be retained in order that a litter of pigs be raised the following year. The pigs are to be purchased about May and it is estimated they will cost about $10.00 for the two, pure bred Berkshires being recommended. The meat pig being sold in the fall should realize about $30.00, thus placing the young borrower in a position to pay off the Bank and have the Pure-Bred Gilt to the good. The borrower pays interest on the sum loaned at the rate of 6%, and also pays a 50¢ membership fee to the Club is for the purpose of establishing a reserve fund for insurance against occasional unavoidable losses of pigs incurred through no fault of the owners. Such losses will be charged to the reserve fund, and if no loss occurs, the 50¢ is refunded to the members at the end of the season. A small committee consisting of R. T. E. Armstrong, Mr. S. I. Hanbury and Chas. H. Adsett will assist the local Manager in furthering the success of the undertaking. This committee will pass on applications for membership, and deal with any problems which may arise in the interest of the club. Applicants are admitted who can satisfy the Club Committee of their ability to properly care for the pigs, and arrange to supply the necessary food.

The Bank will advance the money to the borrower for six months or as long as deemed necessary, with interest at 6% per annum. The borrower signs a promissory note for the amount the hogs cost, and also a simple form of contract agreeing to repay the Bank at maturity the said amount out of the proceeds of the sale of the original stock or increase. The parent or guardian (without necessarily giving up all personal responsibility) gives his or her written consent to the undertaking, and also waives any claim to the ownership of the pigs or the profit upon them.

The Merchants Bank at Munson is ready to receive applications for membership, and the list will remain open until the middle of April. The applicant should state whether they would like the Local Committee to purchase the hogs, or if they would prefer to make the purchases themselves, subject to the consent of the Committee. Competent buyers will locate desirable pigs, and a day will be set aside for their distribution at a certain central point or points. The applicants will draw lots for the order in which they will make their selection. Any further particulars required may be obtained from the Manager of the Merchants Bank at Munson or from a member of the Committee.

MECHECHE ECHOES

Tommy's Helpers Club from
Munson put on Amateur Play here

The Tommy's Helpers Club of Munson gave an entertainment in the Mecheche Hall on Feb. 22nd in the form of two plays, "The Obstinate Family" and "Our Aunt from California." The stage was nicely arranged by all and each player was well chosen for the part they played. In expressing the general feeling of all present the entire affair was most enjoyable and we will look forward to having the Munson players again in the near future.

Paul Nelson returned Wednesday from California where he spent the winter in the sunny Southern cities.

GRiffin-Johnson

At the home of the bride's father, Mr. Smith Johnson, near Mecheche on Tuesday, Feb. 19, 1918, Mr. Douglas Harold Griffin and Miss Lena Sarah Johnson, both of Mecheche, were united in marriage by the Rev. D. Dack. The young couple were attended by the brother and sister of the bride, Mr. Fulton Johnson and Miss Lois Johnson. The ceremony took place in the presence of the near relatives of the bride and groom, after which dinner was served. The young couple will reside on their farm near Mecheche.

MUNSON DISTRICT LEADS PROVINCE IN WHEAT

C. H. Adsett attended the 13th Annual Convention of the Agricultural and Fairs Association held in Edmonton last week, as a delegate from the Munson Agricultural Society and reports a very good meeting. It was the largest in attendance and the most interesting ever held on account of a greater interest being taken to improve the management of fairs. The speakers were Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, H. A. Craig, Deputy Min. of Agri., Alex. Galbraith, Supt. of Fairs, Dr. Reynolds of Manitoba Agricultural College, Prof. Cutler, Dean Hoves and others.

The Provincial Seed Fair was held at the same time and a large exhibit of grain was shown, especially of Marquis wheat. Unfortunately the exhibits from Munson, consisting of 7 samples, did not arrive until after the judging was finished although it was shipped on Feb. 13th. Mr. Rasmussen said Munson had the best wheat he had judged this year, as did several others. It is indeed too bad that Munson lost the honors but the blame lies with the express company. The delay is being investigated by the department.

There was great interest taken in the exhibits of young people at fairs and advice was given to encourage the boys and girls in livestock.

E. L. Richardson was re-elected President of Alberta Fairs Association for the 4th year. At the same time the Provincial Dairy Convention was being held and joint meetings were held in the evenings, when addresses were delivered by dairy and agricultural men. Fred Wilson, formerly of Munson scored a second prize in butter judging.

The Sarcee Post Office was closed on Feb. 11th and the business will be handled from the Ghost Pine Creek office.

the winter seemed to me to be due entirely to the ventilation. The feeding and care was very similar—in fact I would trust cattle to the man who handled the steers in the barn before I would to the other. The steady cold weather seems to be a favorable factor in the production of a comfortable weather, but housing against low temperatures and providing no ventilation does not get good results. Ventilating the barns proves successful and a large number of our farmers are doing it.

great restlessness, a craving for club or corporate life, but out of the confusions and disruptions of war, they have found a longing for quiet things and for the solitude of the home. Clubs and hotels, even in London, are almost deserted. A year ago, especially those which were run on common-sense lines without artificiality, were crowded with guests because so many women must live in London today, and because there is no other place to go. The rooms of these hotels are full. But they are now unpopular. They are regarded as useful stopovers in the career of a woman, but not as a home. However, there burns the secret desire for a little house of her own, a house where she can be mistress, wife, and mother. The dream of wifehood that shone as a star for so many of these women has not faded away. Happy mating is the remotest of possibilities for hundreds of women in London today. Men today. Women have given not only their husbands to the battlefield, and so it is that the man who is in the line is in which

The Attractions of Home

Aged French Woman Sole Inhabitant of War-Torn Village

In spite of the vigorous protests that come from Canada, the Ancestral Seemings have created the impression that Canadians are yearning for titles and decorations. If the process goes on much longer the man without a title will have to be a man of exception, and women are now being gathered into the titled fold.

The objection, of course, does not apply to the military, and naval services on the field, by soldiers and nurses. But men whose services are performed at a desk ought to have their modesty respected. It is not a man's duty to perform valuable war services by telephoning and dictating letters, but so are the farmers who are producing food and the workers who are producing clothing. If justice is to be done, there ought to be an Ancient and Honorable Order of Grain Growers and Shell Makers and a Legion of the Star.

Australians to Supply Millions of Pounds to Britain and U. S.

Adverts have been received that the minister of trade and customs for the Australian commonwealth has completed contract for the sale of fifty million pounds of surplus Australian jam to the imperial government. What Women Want to Know

Some Queries and Answers Regarding Conservation of Food

England are joining the food queues in some cases at 5 o'clock in the morning and waiting, perhaps only to be told that there are no more supplies of tea, butter and marmalade! Remember, too, that the situation in the United States is not as dire as it is in France, Belgium and Serbia. The food situation is becoming more serious there, but the controller is emphatic that every person who can possibly produce food should do so, no matter how small his or her contribution may be. Those who cannot produce food can at least conserve the food that is available. The situation is critical and the world is rapidly approaching that condition in which it will be necessary to ask the important question, "It is obvious from your letter that you live on the fat of the land. Do you have a contribution to do not only of inestimable value, but also of inestimable bulk. You can not only economize but you can produce. Can you produce a good, a workhorse under our wing? You would be really and practically helping the

Mrs. L. A. The supply of milk is affected by the war because the soldiers need canned milk for the solidified hospitals. Much cows are decreasing in number in Europe. France has drawn upon her dairy herds for beef, reducing the number of milch cows 25 per cent. between 1913 and 1916. Since the decrease has been even greater, Canada is called upon to supply every can of milk possible. Cheese is also in great demand.

Stay-at-Home. The most useful thing the stay-at-home can do is to save and economize. Watch everything! Guard against waste in the kitchen and on the table. Be on your guard against waste in the dining room. As much food is wasted in the eating as in the cooking. There is one other sin against the enemy which is sin against the men who are fighting for Canada overseas. It is hampering the allies in the war by not doing the best work of the farmers of Canada who are producing the much needed supplies. Teach the children to clean their plates. Remember that the slice of bread, the half cup of milk, the morsel of butter that is left over, when thrown away, is the equivalent of the waste of millions of pounds' worth of good food stuff. Then save! If you have a garden, grow potatoes, peas, beans and other vegetables. Never mind about flowers now. Grow something that will be of use. Grow chickens and pigs. Make butter and cheese. Hogs the Best Revenue

Farmers Find That Raising Hogs Is a Profitable Side Line

Writing to the Farmers' Advocate, agricultural weekly, a Manitoba farmer states that the best revenue his farm has been from hogs. Making of 1917, he says: "Our pigs are allowed to run until they were 18 months old, then they were sold to a feeder. "After that, they are fed up and fed chow, one-half wheat and one-half corn," says the farmer.

After two months' feeding they weighed the scale at 150 pounds and the age of six months, topped 200 pounds each, thus averaging $32 each for three months' feeding. "I expect the hog business is going to be a lot better than it was in 1917 if properly attended to, they are the most profitable pig a farmer can grow, besides helping to win the war!"

distressing fact for hero-women is that famous men often have inexplicable marriages. The prince politely made a present of her to the czar, who eventually married her, renamed her Catherine, and she reigned after him as Catherine I., empress of all the Russias.

Thomas Day, the author of the novel, says, "I found a young man and one from a founding town—and took them into his house as domestics. He proposed to me in their turn. On rejection, he was so violently angry that he subsequently withdrew her name on account of his eccentricity. Day, however, admired the courage, and settled for her. She was the same time as a maid to a bachelor. There remain more startling is the example of Sir Gervase Clifton, whose first wife, of Jamaica is one of his finest qualities. He, however, married no fewer than seven times, each time selected a wife from

"Then why do you want to go?"
"I can't tell you. I had a hard life in England and on the whole, was glad to get away. Perhaps it's a homing instinct, like the pigeon's and perhaps it's sentiment. We came because nobody wanted us and have ourselves pretty comfortable. America's our model and we have no use for English patronage, but every now and then the pull comes and we long to go back, though we wouldn't like to stop there. It's illogical, but it there was trouble in Europe, and the Old Country needed help, we'd all go across."

"In a wild way, the journey's something of an adventure. Perhaps it's a homing instinct, like the pigeon's and perhaps it's sentiment. We came because nobody wanted us and have ourselves pretty comfortable. America's our model and we have no use for English patronage, but every now and then the pull comes and we long to go back, though we wouldn't like to stop there. It's illogical, but it there was trouble in Europe, and the Old Country needed help, we'd all go across."

"I don't," Foster agreed. "One might imagine that there was enough adventure here, but it really isn't. The lone trail has a minimal claim at the end of it, but because of the elevator company's receipt when you break the new furrow. Hardship gets as much as comfort; you want something fresh, and in fact, that you don't want to take for money. Of course, if you look at it economically, this is foolish."

"Like you better as a sentimentalist than a philosopher," Foster answered. "It's the former one goes to them, but the latter one does. However, if you would like a chance."

She danced well and Foster knew there were men in the hall who envied him. He, however, had never known it would be remarked that she danced well. Other attendants and shown him special favor. This, of course, would not trouble her, because she was generally did what she pleased, but he felt inclined to take her as an object. He knew her well enough to think she had an object. When the music stopped, he said, "Now you may take me in to supper."

Supper was served in the ante-room, but although this was contrary to local custom, it was not came in when they liked and were provided with small, separate tables. Indeed, Foster's table was attended by a single waiter, who guided him to a quiet room, partly screened by cedar curtains, where they could see without being seen. He thought this significant, as a spot with such advantages could be occupied, but this did not cause him much surprise. This creature happened as Carmen wanted, and it was a privilege to be able to see her in that clever girl in the hall.

"You are going to stay at Featherstone's home in England, aren't you?" she asked by and by.

"Yes," said Foster, who wondered how she knew. "Since I've spent ten years on the plains, I think it will be a rather embarrassing change. You see, I'm better used to bachelor tables and logging camps than English country homes."

Carmen firmly began him back to the subject. "Do you know much about his relatives?" It was obvious that he belonged to good family. However, you'll have him with you."

Foster, who did not mean to let that Featherstone was not going to have him, smiled.

"I know nothing about them. In fact, my ignorance of the habits of a good many rich English is on my mind."

Carmen gave him a level, critical glance. "They won't be able to find much fault with you, and if they do, you wouldn't care, so it wouldn't matter. But that is not what I want. You have been made so good a partner for some time, and it's curious that he had told you nothing about his home."

"He's reserved," said Foster, who looked up as Daisy came into the room with a laughing girl, at whom Carmen glanced somewhat coldly.

"Do you know what that man is doing here?"

"I don't," but as he's agent for an engineering company. I say he's looking for a new father's office and at your house, and Mr. Austin doesn't buy machines."

"Then perhaps, by speculating in building lots we deal in them," Carmen rejoined with a laugh. "I don't think they meet my father's friends, but don't ask them about their business."

She went on with her sister, and Daisy and his companion sat down on the floor. The fellow was well dressed and on the whole a handsome man, though there was something about him to excite Mr. Austin's attention. He looked a little older than Foster, who, he thought, had thoughtfully, Daisy had said one or two machines to the neighborhood of the Crossing, but the business he did there hardly seemed to warrant his visit. It was possible that he made it an excuse for visiting Featherstone, but Foster fancied that Carmen knew more about him than she confessed.

"Perhaps you'll visit Scotland before you come back," she said and then she turned away.

What Women Want to Know

Some Queries and Answers Regarding Conservation of Food

The New Broom. Your hint about the containers is very timely. The use of the fact that next season many housewives will avail themselves of the canning of products of the "war gardens" is "good business" to overhaul the empty containers at this time with their rubber and other attachments and get them in readiness for next summer's canning.

Very well, but I believe the customs researchers, who examine your baggage, are sometimes officious. They might think I was trying to smuggle and make me open the things.

You have such a cardless and innocent look. For all that, your friends and you are getting very busy.

"Thank you, I suppose I'm lucky, because one meets people whose values are not as high as mine. I'll take the packet, and if necessary, I'll take the money."

"It won't be necessary," Carmen answered and then she turned and talked about other matters for some minutes before she told him to take her. She was a very pretty woman, and this was a tactful politeness and she was able to obtain his object.

No. 6

BACON

"Keep-a-pig" is the slogan of the hour. Mr. Hanna has been consistently urging upon Canadians the need for increased hog production. Bacon is a prime necessity. Europe which Canada and the United States can supply.

A pig means bacon for the men at the front. Bacon has concentrated food value in the lightest degree and is better adapted for shipping than any other kind of meat.

The "Whitish side" which is the trade name for half a pig hog dressed with backbone removed, and ready for shipment, has only 7 per cent. bone as compared with 20 per cent. bone in dressed beef, 20 per cent. in mutton and 25 per cent. in veal.

Thus it is readily apparent that, with ocean tonnage at a premium, bacon is especially desirable for shipment overseas.

More vital heat and energy are concentrated in a pound of bacon than in a pound of beef, veal or mutton. The fat content of bacon is valuable to men working and fighting in the outdoors and fats are by no means plentiful in Europe.

That is why the food controller is urging an increase in hog production and a decrease in the home consumption of bacon.

Again it is a question of individual sacrifice and the integrity of the housekeeper. There are many substitutes for meat. It is true that it has enjoyed universal popularity, appearing on the tables of the rich and poor. But it is not now a question of whether or not we can afford to buy it. It amounts to this:—We must not buy it except in very limited quantities. In order to maintain the necessary supplies to the allies two courses are open. (1) To reduce the fat content of pork products; (2) To increase production.

As to the increase in the production of pork fats can be accomplished much more rapidly than in the case of beef or dairy products. As Mr. Hoover has said: "It appears to me that we can concentrate on the increase in the production of hogs if we are to answer the country's craving for fats."

The despised pig was never in the whole course of his existence as important to the war as at present. The need for him has raised him in the eyes of the world. His usefulness has been recognized as never before. Anyone who keeps a pig at this time, whether in the city or the country, is rendering useful service to the empire.

The British soldier is allowed four ounces of bacon in 1913-1914—before the war—but in Great Britain was 25.60 pounds of meat.

ALBERTA'S GREATEST DAILY

What to Buy and Where
THE metropolitan newspaper of today aims to carry ALL the news.

Ranking equal in importance to the news contained in its reading columns is that which is found in its advertising columns. Both are of interest to the reader. THE CALGARY HERALD IS THE ONLY NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED IN CALGARY WHICH CARRIES THE FULL STORE-NEWS ANNOUNCEMENTS OF THE BIG STORES. Proportionally it is patronized by the other merchants who have good goods to sell. To the buyer in and out of town this is an important factor in the choice of a newspaper.

SPECIAL TRIAL SUBSCRIPTION OFFER
4 MTHS. $1

The regular subscription price to The Herald is $100 a year by mail, but if you cut out this advertisement and send it with your name, P.O. address and ONE DOLLAR ($1.00) to the Circulation Manager, The Herald, Calgary, you will receive The Herald daily for four months.

CALGARY MAN FAMOUS AS POET
Canadians are beginning to read books by their own authors. The announcement that "Kitchener and Other Poems," a volume of patriotic and western verse by Robert J. C. Stead has already gone into its third edition in Canada is a case in point. The book has made an instantaneous hit with the Canadian public on account of its dramatic interest and its sincere Canadian note. Such poems as "Kitchener," "He sleeps in Flanders," and "Why Don't They Cheer?" have been published in papers and magazines wherever the English language is spoken. Those who care at all about the influence which are building Canadian national character will be glad to add this book to their collection.
